- Estimates for publication, 1997

Note [generalNote]:

Accession 2012-006, Box 1

Note [generalNote]:

Note from Dr. Simkin: I wanted to write a Haggadah for Passover where women were not left out. I was sick and tired of everything being so male oriented. I made a few tries and ultimately published the book: "Like an Orange on a Seder Plate" - but lots of these papers are versions we used earlier and they ultimately became part of the published book.

- Vulvar basal cell epithelioma is often misdiagnosed, 1977
- Basal cell epithelioma of the Vulva, May 1977

Note [generalNote]:

Accession 2012-006, Box 1

Note [generalNote]:

Note from Dr. Simkin: The one entitled: "Methanolysis of 2-nitrophenyl acetate" won me a Hillebrand Award from the Washington, DC Chemical Society. Apparently I discovered a physical constant in physical chemistry. I don't understand any of it now though.

The Case Report on Basal Cell Carcinoma was also presented at an International Dermatological Conference for which I also got some kind of award. It changed the treatment of cancer of the vulva. Previously, the accepted treatment was total removal of pretty much the whole pelvis, leaving the women very deformed and completely non-functional sexually. After my work, the accepted treatment was local excision, leaving pretty much everything except the cancer. I was very proud of this one.

All the papers are either in the original medical journal or show where they were published.
